

Studienbegleitprogramm Rheinland-Pfalz/Saarland

für Studierende aus Asien, Afrika, Lateinamerika und Osteuropa

Program for financing vocational preparatory internships and study visits in the country of origin (BPSA)

1. Why BPSA?

Foreign students often spend eight or more years in Germany before successfully completing their studies. This inevitably leads to alienation from their families and friends, but also to a greater distance from developments in their home countries, where they later live and work. They are increasingly losing not only contact to, but also the knowledge of the situation in their home countries.

Vocational preparatory internships and study visits should help to counter social alienation and the loss of knowledge, as well as to strengthen the developmental relevance and later professional orientation of one's own degree program.

2. Aim of the funding

BPSA serves to:

- support subject-related learning and achievement of the study objective;
- Establish and revive contacts in the country of origin after a long absence due to studies;
- Make a connection between course contents and developmental practice.

3. Requirements for the funding

The BPSA funding can be received by foreign students from Africa, Asia, Latin America or Eastern Europe (countries that are considered developing countries or regions according to the Development Assistance Committee (DAC)) can receive funding, who
