

Description of the Peace Education Lesson

24 January, 2023 at 17.30 , Deutsche Universität für Verwaltungswissenschaften, Speyer

There are many conflicts in the world, and it is necessary to learn how to solve them. The nature and philosophical foundations of Peace Education are normally pointed out by contrasting them with the conflicts that take place in all areas of society and in educational environments.

War, wherever it takes place, is the antithesis of the goals of sustainable development. To address the global challenges we face, nations must work together in harmony. Without a return to peace, the sustainability implications for Ukraine, the wider region, and around the world, could be far-reaching.

SDG 16 sets out the commitment to promote peaceful and inclusive societies for sustainable development, provide access to justice for all and build effective, accountable, and inclusive institutions at all levels.

The aim of the peace education lesson: counter-culture of war by promoting a culture of peace according to sustainable development goal 16: peaceful and inclusive societies.

Objectives of the Peace Education Lesson:

- Understand the law-abiding spirit through the necessity of law.
- Understand that one needs to have traits of peace in order to observe the law.
- Understand that a binding law of peace is needed to achieve peace.
